

A Black Enigma

Conspectus

'To conclude or be damned' is a theory revealing a seminal part in an ancient language structure, spoken by homo-sapiens in the Kingdom of Kerry that once embraced The Isles of Britain and Ireland and that was pure, original and direct from Africa. These primal words in their originality and purity reveal a pattern and a concept that shows a signal that is significant today. This theory denounces the existing academic practices in synchronic studies as irrelevant for this purpose.

This theory dismisses the Genesis Myth (11:1-9) for these Black homos sapiens because it did not apply to those that founded The Kingdom of Kerry because their journey was not the same path used on which the story of mankind is based upon. Their path eclipsed Noah, The Torah, The Bible, and The Koran.

A Black Enigma.
